Foreword by Christian Jost, Composer in Residence 2016

“I am always in search of the magic moment and I arrive at it by a complex, differentiated relationship of structure, form and sound.” Christian Jost, Composer in Residence 2016

“Music is perhaps the only art form in which the transmission of knowledge and experience and the opening up of cross-connections is the major factor in the continuing life of the music: the art form in which the technical bar against practising it is set the highest. This is at once its curse and its magic. Even if we keep falling short when we attempt to give verbal form to the inexplicable element which makes music into music, it remains hugely important to create forums in which we can continue to seek to come closer to the magic of music, even if at the end of the day we return to the conclusion that the search was the decisive factor, because there will always be an element that is indecipherable.

“Our workshop INK STILL WET offers composers the chance to probe to the core of music practice, rehearse their works with a professional orchestra and thus carry out a kind of ‘open heart surgery’ by making direct incisions into the work that is on the table. At the same time, all interested parties have the wonderful opportunity to immerse themselves directly in this creative process, which usually takes place behind closed doors. How does sound arise in context? Which instrument combinations offer a true realization of the sound in the composer’s inner ear? How does an orchestra react to a brand-new score? What grabs us, what tends to put us off? This, then, is an exceptional and exciting opportunity to address and answer a wide range of interests and questions.”

As Composer in Residence for 2016, Christian Jost will help composers hone their works in the INK STILL WET workshop. Martyn Brabbins will support participants as they review their works and prepare them for performance.

INK STILL WET

Workshop for composers – Composition Prize

GENERAL

INK STILL WET is for composers who are keen to rehearse their own symphonic works with an internationally celebrated orchestra or entrust the task to an experienced conductor.

Christian Jost will be directing the Composer-Conductor Workshop, which is being held for the sixth time during the Grafenegg Festival. As the Composer in Residence of 2016, Christian Jost works with composers to give their works the final polish. Martyn Brabbins assists the workshop participants in the elaboration and preparation of works to be conducted.

INK STILL WET nurtures the creative interchange between music creators and its interpreters and offers insights into the whole thrilling process of developing and rehearsing a composition.

APPLICATION and SELECTION

Ludwig van Beethoven's works will occupy a central place in the 2016 Grafenegg Festival.

The expectation is therefore that works submitted for INK STILL WET will pick up a motif chosen at will from one of Beethoven's works and give it symphonic treatment.

Entry requirements:

- Duration: The composition must not last longer than 7 minutes.

- Maximum orchestral scoring: strings 10-8-6-4-2; doubled woodwinds; 4 horns, 3 trumpets, 3 trombones, tuba; 1 kettledrum, 2 percussionists, 1 harp, piano/celesta
- Response: You will be supplied by early March 2016 with a definitive acceptance or refusal with further detailed information about the course. If you are admitted to the workshop, the parts, conducting score and piano reduction must have reached us in PDF format by 1 June 2016.
- Workshop size: max. 6 participants
Both the closing concert of INK STILL WET and the individual working sessions are free of charge and open to all visitors, students and interested observers.
- Deadline for application: 15 February 2016
